

Delegation Name: Somalia

Ambassador Name: Can Philip Walters

Honorable Chair, distinguished delegates,

As the delegation of Somalia, it is an honor to be present at this conference on “Navigating Uncertainty Through Mutual Trust” and to address you today. At a time when global instability, climate change, and economic fragility increasingly challenge the resilience of our collective structure, mutual trust and cooperation have become crucial. Therefore, building trust is not merely a diplomatic preference but a necessity for the continuity of international relations and the global system. The Somali state increasingly recognizes the importance of cooperation as a foundation for peace and stability.

As the Somali delegation, we aim to maintain this policy throughout the conference and, by its conclusion, to find long-term, practical, and cooperative solutions to various challenges across different committees. We believe that mutual trust must lie at the heart of international negotiations. Without mutual trust, cooperation in discussions cannot be achieved, and without cooperation, reaching sustainable solutions is impossible. As previously stated, our delegation aims by the end of this conference to advance forward-looking solutions, strengthen international relations and unity, and move toward a more inclusive international order.

The Somali delegation invites all representatives to work together constructively and in good faith. In an era defined by uncertainty, Somalia remains convinced that a shared future built on mutual trust is not only possible but essential.
