

Delegation Name: Ukraine

Ambassador Name: Kerem Kahveci

Most esteemed President, honourable chairs and fellow delegates,

As the ambassador of the delegation of Ukraine, we would like to say that it is a great honor for us to be a part of the 29th annual Turkish International Model United Nations conference. Starting our speech, we feel the need to say that after the pandemic era, which has undeniably broken or weakened international bonds, the world as a whole needs these bonds restored rapidly with great attention, providing international cooperation in the main aim of “Securing Post-Conflict Peace”, which we as a delegation think is a subject that should be brought up more in discussions.

Considering the state that Ukraine is currently in with Russia, we think that the delegation of Ukraine has much to offer and a lot to discuss in this year’s conference, especially when the main theme is securing post-conflict peace. We believe that what Ukraine is doing, and will do when this war is over, is and will be exemplary to the whole world. We are also very encouraged about discussing this topic with other delegations in order to create common solutions that are suitable for most countries, which requires, as we have stated before, a very effective work of international cooperation. And if we approve of them, we intend to put them into practice right after we are done with our current situation.

As a requirement of our general policy, Ukraine is a country that does everything it can in order to avoid military intervention, so we think that it is obvious to see why we are concerned about this issue that much. We don’t want these events to happen on the globe anymore, because we know that the consequences come not only for us, but for all of humanity, so we invite all the delegations who think alike to work with us to solve this issue for once and for all.

We would like to finish our speech by remarking the importance of solving this issue for the good of our collective future, so we encourage other delegations to make decisions thinking about the coming of our countries, not the current situation only.

The delegation of Ukraine wishes for enjoyable and fruitful debates and beneficial solutions found throughout the conference, and once again would like to state that they are grateful to take part in this conference.
