

Delegation Name: Libya

Ambassador Name: Ecem Sera Su

Most Distinguished Secretary General, Honorable President of the General Assembly and Dear Delegates,

As the delegation of the Libyan Government of National Accord, it is a great honor for us to be present here in the 29th annual session of Turkish International Model United Nations. It is precious for us to be among all the other nations, addressing such influential people here, today. We would like to thank the organizers of this event, for providing a medium for us delegations to address critical issues. Regarding this year's crucial theme, "Securing Post-conflict Peace", we, as a country that has recently come out of a devastating civil war, believe that this year's TIMUN holds greater importance due to the fact that many countries are experiencing conflicts regardless of their context and are wishing to secure peace post these conflicts.

Our country and our citizens have experienced a civil war, fighting for our peace and democracy, which had severe effects on our country's peace as a whole. Therefore after this subversive war, securing peace after such conflicts is an ongoing operation we are holding, also with the support of the United Nations Support Mission on Libya. We would like to thank all the countries that collaborated with our country in such a crucial time against the past undemocratic regime, since it couldn't have been possible without the United Nations. We as a country are aiming for a more united, peaceful and inclusive status within the country and the citizens, after this crisis and the second civil war that is ceased recently. We are sure that all countries within the UN are unanimous regarding the necessity and urgency of securing peace both globally and nationally after such conflicts. We surely believe that in this year's general assembly, we will resolve the issue of "securing peace" for all countries starting with our own country. It is evident that none of the great work that is completed by us, United Nations, could have been done without the collaboration, cooperation, solidarity and especially the interdependence within the nations.

It is important to note that we are disturbed by the ill intentions of the Russian Federation and their military interventions in Ukraine, and we are urging for an immediate ceasefire for the sake of peace and security. Considering the anti-democratic tendencies in the European Union recently, we are assured that this conference proves to be addressing a crucial issue that spreads to the rest of the world, rather than the international community's traditionally targeted regions for anti-democratic events such as the Middle East.

Dear delegates, it is with much importance that all member states present here, today, in the 29th annual session of TIMUN, do not hesitate in helping and supporting each other when required to secure the peace we all seek. Our belief is that, once again, with the devotion and the synergic work of all UN agencies, Funds and Programmes, and foremost the delegates of the United Nations, it is assured that there will be no restrictions in the scope of the establishment of a more peaceful status within countries post conflicts.

We thank you all, and yield the floor to the Madam President of the General Assembly.
