

Delegation Name: South Sudan

Ambassador Name: Elsa Glomm-White

Honourable secretary general, fellow delegates, treasured admin, esteemed guests.

The delegation of South Sudan is honoured to be present at this conference. We are looking forward to efficient and effective debate, aiding the peace-building efforts of the world.

Two years ago, South Sudan was able to end a civil war that ravaged the country for seven years. Therefore, South Sudan is gravely aware of the imminent importance of aiding countries to transition away from the rammifications of war, and believes that this year's topic, securing post-conflict peace, should be regarded with the highest commitment and respect.

Climate change plays a large role in deciding how best to secure peace. Although South Sudan's civil war is over, the economic, human and nature losses are immense, and these are only aided by devastating effects from climate change. These factors mean that South Sudan is less able to recover from the civil war and therefore climate change must be taken into consideration when creating resolutions around this conference's theme.

All committees will be partaking in aiding countries to secure post-conflict peace. From considering internally displayed persons in GA2 to assessing future repercussions of marine and land degradation in GA4, South Sudan will consider all resolutions necessary and useful. By the closing ceremony of this conference, South Sudan wishes that resolutions have been created proposing advice to countries struggling to recover from war and struggling to provide peace for its citizens, such as South Sudan itself.

The delegation of South Sudan, is once again entirely honored to be here, and expresses its deep gratitude to all nations for considering this topic of the greatest importance.

Thank you.
