ADVISORY PANEL

What is the Advisory Panel?

The Advisory Panel (AP) is one of the most advanced committees of the United Nations. Unlike regular GA committees, the AP does not have delegates; instead, it has experts of involved countries' policies. The AP follows the Ad-Hoc debate system, which goes clause-by-clause to create a proposal in the end. The experts are required to be well informed on the question and use that information during the debate in order to create a proposal that will ultimately be submitted to the debate of the Security Council.

Advisory Panel in TIMUN '20

This year's Advisory Panel will be gathering for the disputes within the Southern Asia region. The experts will be focusing on geographical locations with political significance, such as the Durand Line, Bay of Bengal, and other regions affected by state-sponsored terrorism. This year, the experts will be taking their skills onto the digital platform yet will continue proceeding by the accustomed Ad-Hoc procedure, where communication and negotiation skills will be tested for a full-house consensus.

Advisory Panel Rules of Procedure

a. Procedures for Debate

- The debate is conducted in clause-by-clause format and in a closed debate format.
- After taking the floor, a speaker must choose among:
  - Yielding the floor to the chair,
  - Yielding the floor to another panelist,
  - Answering points of information from the House.

NOTE: Panelists are allowed to yield the floor to another panelist after having answered points of information from the House. This can only happen once consecutively.

- Follow-ups are allowed in the Advisory Panel, but they are to be granted at the Presidency's discretion.

b. Procedures for Amendments:

- Amendments are conducted in a closed debate format.
- The Panelists may submit new clauses as amendments after all clauses submitted during lobbying are debated.
- When an amendment fails, the submitter does not retain the floor.
- The Advisory Panel adopts amendments by consensus. Voting procedures for amendments is the same with that of clauses. See "Procedures for Voting".

c. Procedures for Voting:

- When voting on clauses, Panelists may vote for, against or abstain; no panelist holds the veto power.
- The Advisory Panel adopts clauses by consensus. If a Panelist is going to vote against or abstain, the Panelist must object to moving into the voting procedures. The Presidency holds the power to cancel lobbying procedures if a Panelist votes against a clause without objecting to moving into the voting procedures.
- If a Panelist votes against or abstains, the clause under consideration will be tabled by the Presidency. Panelists may move a motion to reconsider a tabled clause at any point in the debate. Panelists may withdraw clauses at any time except for during voting procedures.
- The Presidency may declare that the clause under consideration will be adopted with a simple majority if present in the house, only when essential for the debate.
