

Delegation Name: Qatar

Ambassador Name: Matthew Adams

We come before all of you today to discuss peace, how to achieve peace, and how to keep peace. The largest threats we have in these modern times to our peace is, unsurprisingly, conflict between nations, ethnic groups, and politically polar opposite groups. Our goal in being here is to work with the many other like-minded delegations to work and solve these issues, and to work to improve unity and peace worldwide.

All of the issues that our delegates will be working on to tackle with the other delegations that have come here are all quite important, as they all affect our nations in various manners, some positive, but for the most part, negative, and need to be solved. These issues range from terrorism to juvenile punishment, the control of deadly diseases to ending poverty, and solving and preventing all of these issues from continuing.

We trust that the delegates here are like minded and cooperative, so that we may take the necessary steps to make the world a better place, and achieve peace in our lifetimes.
